CHARLESTON, SC

Favorites	Notes
Callie's Hot Little Biscuit	Self-explanatory: come for breakfast, stay for late night biscuits.
Butcher & Bee	Perfect little salads to take on a picnic to Folly Beach.
Leon's Oyster Shop	There is a reason this is on all the "Best New" lists – the freshest oysters, sumptuous fried chicken, and a beautifully designed space.
Angel Oak Park	One giant oak tree - just a quick drive from downtown - full of the kind of rare wonder and magic that's hard to find.
Husk	A classic for a reason and worth the trip for the bread & pork and honey butter alone, for me, though you should also save room for the pigs' ears and the loaded fried rice.
Morris Island Lighthouse	Built in 1876, the lighthouse was originally 1,200 feet (around 370 m) from the water's edge. Now, following rapid shore erosion, building currents, and its participation in all of Charleston's rich history, from the Civil War to Hurricane Hugo, you can see that the lighthouse is far out at sea.
FIG	Do sit at the communal table, make some new friends, and have the amberjack, the crab linguine, and a stiff drink.
