Notes

Daunt Books (Marylebone)

If I had to pick a quintessential spot in London, this would be it. Book lovers of the world agree.

The Orange

Every Sunday, I wish I could be having Sunday roast by the fire in this gastropub in Pimlico.

Borough Market

Everyone will tell you to come to shop and eat here, and they will be right. Don't miss Neal's Yard Dairy for so.much.cheese.

Tate Modern

An imposing building and an equally imposing institution (Tate Britain) has a little more fun in this former power station in Southbank.

Lyle's

Currently, the trendy spot for foodies and chefs alike. The tasting menu showcases the best of Britain.

Ginger Pig/La Fromagerie

If you are a meat lover, or just fancy a spot of lunch, make sure to stop by this upscale grocer-butcher-cafe.

Churchill Arms

This historic pub is full of fun knickknacks, easy service, and authentic Thai dishes, which it made famous as pub food.
